IT WORKS LIKE THIS

Banks use PowerOn to customize and enhance Jack Henry processing systems. The JHA Marketplace is an online community where you can find or offer customized solutions. Any bank or vendor that has our software development kit (SDK) can submit solutions. A unique feature of the Marketplace is that you may charge a fee for your solution. For banks, this is non-interest income that can defray the cost of development time and earn a profit. For vendors, it's a place to reach potential customers and to learn about bank's needs.

You can search the Marketplace for solutions that meet your specific requirements, and if there is not a published solution that matches your search, you may post a request for it. When you find a solution you want, download a .zip file of the scripting code and a documentation file. Once you've tried it, you can post a rating and review to help guide other participants.

BUILT-IN QUALITY CONTROL

Jack Henry validates each submission for safety and usability before it is made available. The rating system will enable you to see at a glance the top rated and most downloaded solutions. There is also a highlighted Editor's Choice solution each month. The Marketplace provides a one-stop shop for creative solutions and offers an open community to share ideas.

WHAT IT DOES:

- Provides an easy way to find customization solutions
- Enables banks and vendors to charge a fee for solutions or to share them for free
- Provides user ratings and the number of downloads for solutions
- Enables users to post requests for specific solutions

WHAT IT DOES FOR ME:

- Saves time and money that would otherwise be spent developing your own solution
- Creates a potential income source if you charge for a solution you created
- Provides a community for users to share ideas
